THE COHEN CO.

What makes the world so wondrous fair?
The earth so green, the sky so blue?
The sweetest sunbeams fill the air,
Where once was all a dismal hue.
My little world is full of song.
The birds around sing blithe and gay;
There's music all the fields among—
My sweetheart's coming home to-day.
A day ago 'twas dark as night;
How long and dreary seemed all time
But now the waiting's o'er—ail's bright;
My heart is full of gladdest rhyme!
The flowers smile and nod their heads,
As if their joy they would essay.
Ah! do they know? Yes, they must know
My sweetheart's coming home to-day!
KATHLEEN HUSHE.
